High-Level ESG Assessment

Our ESG Assessment provides a high-level materiality review of your industry's sustainability landscape, mapped to the company's industry-appropriate Sustainability Accounting Standards Board (SASB) guidance.

Our Engagement Process

After reviewing the high-level operational and due diligence data you provide, we'll schedule several hour-long calls over the course of 8-10 weeks with 1-3 executive-level decision-makers. During these calls, we'll:

- ◆ Review the current state of your company's ESG baselines, metrics, progress, and goals.
- ◆ Discuss your existing sustainability concerns and opportunities.
- ◆ Evaluate your internal capacity for managing sustainability initiatives.

Our guided process will help you increase communication across your organization and generate pathways for building an interdepartmental sustainability team.

Deliverables and Compelling Insights

Upon project completion, you'll receive:

- ◆ A Materiality Assessment that maps the importance of various environmental, social, and governance (ESG) issues to stakeholders and business success, applying a "dual materiality" screen wherein ESG objectives overlap with financial considerations.
- ◆ Top 5-10 nonfinancial sustainability KPIs for internal operations and the broader value chain. This will include an independent assessment of current data management practices, a review of key client sustainability baseline metrics (if available), and a comparison to publicly available benchmarks and sustainability targets for client-identified competitors.
- ◆ A list of notable findings and risks the company can use to inform decision-making.
- ◆ A detailed list of recommendations and next steps that identify "low-hanging fruit" actions to improve sustainability performance in the next 12-24 months, prioritizing activities that enhance relevant KPIs and financial performance while reducing regulatory and reputational risk. We will also provide a list of longer-term (i.e., higher cost, high impact) projects and initiatives that can be undertaken as your objectives and budget allow.
